

JOHN SHERMAN.

John Sherman by dint of many years of hard work has finally succeeded in getting the Ohio Republicans to nominate him for the Presidency. Mr. Sherman labors under two delusions. One is that Ohio's voice rules the Union and another is that the Presidential campaign of 1888 has begun.

To all who look at this matter in the proper light, the thing has the appearance of having been sprung on the country at a time when there was little hope of doing anybody any special good. Some of Blaine's ill advised followers made an effort to stand Sherman off, but had Blaine been in the United States he would probably allowed Sherman all the rope he wanted at this particular time. The position of Sherman before the Toledo Convention is variously discussed by the daily papers, The Graphic says:

Sherman is this year repeating some of the successful tactics of 1870; but, warned by want of loyalty to Garfield, he proposes to be on the ground in person when the critical moment arrives in the State Convention. He will not permit any false modesty to stand between him and the accomplishment of his hopes of securing the unanimous endorsement of the State Convention in his Presidential ambition. As a simple delegate in the State Convention, Sherman will cut an interesting figure.

The Post says: "He stoops to conquer. Will he be successful in eating his humble pie?"

The Mail and Express says: "All eyes are fixed upon the Republican State Convention, where the Presidential campaign has begun a little too early and too fiercely and has created unnecessary friction, heat and confusion. There was no reason why Sherman should not be recognized as the great leader of his party in Ohio, and as a man eminently entitled to the support of his fellow citizens for the Presidency. But there should be no sort of constraint about this. Freedom and spontaneity are essential elements of value."

The Commercial Advertiser says: "It is evident the contest has hurt Sherman's standing and chances considerably. As we said yesterday, the people do not like to be badgered into hero-worship."

WHY IS IT CLOSED?

The Industrial School in connection with the Orphan's Home at Carson has been closed down indefinitely. Thus the State loses a step in the march of progress.—Enterprise.

The Industrial school in connection with the Orphan's Home was one of the best features of the institution. The building was the gift of the late Senator Sharon and it is a disgrace to Nevada if this school is allowed to fall into disuse. It can hardly be a question of money as the building has been erected and furnished with tools and supplies and the cost of running the school now, consists only of the salary of the Superintendent.

With this department a boy learns a trade so that when he leaves the institution he has some means of earning a livelihood. The boys were receiving instructions as to the use of tools, were getting very much interested and making rapid progress and right in the midst of this the place is closed down.

The taxpayers of the State are anxious to know what this means. Is it not proclaiming to the world that no one need leave bequests to Nevada as the State will not take enough interest in such gifts to pay the running expenses of them? Is it not also a direct insult to the donor, Mr. Sharon?

If the Board were to order this school kept open and call on the next Legislature for an appropriation, does any one for a moment hold that it would be refused?

The matter is one of great importance to the State and should be attended to at once.

The Boston Girl's Craze.
The Sacramento Star says the craze among the Boston girls for their photographs in the nude probably arises from the aestheticism that beauty unadorned is adorned the most. We don't know how the nude Boston girl in Boston might look in a photograph, but as the Boston girl appears as a California tourist, all that would be necessary for a model from which to take her nude photograph would be two broom-sticks and a pair of green eye-glasses.
